

Supporting people living with MND, their whānau, carers, and health professionals.

Services Provided

Motor Neurone Disease New Zealand is a charitable trust dedicated to supporting people living with motor neurone disease (MND), along with their whānau, carers, and the health professionals involved in their care.

MND is a progressive and life-limiting neurological condition that affects a person's ability to move, speak, swallow, and breathe. While there is currently no cure, support can make a meaningful difference.

How can we help

- ✓ We can provide tailored support for people and families affected by MND.
- ✓ We support promising research in Aotearoa which delivers improvements for quality of life, as well as global research identifying potential causes and effective therapies.
- ✓ Connect you with services, health professionals and others affected by MND.

Why we help

Our charity was built on the ethos of helping people affected by motor neurone disease - it's the cornerstone of what we do. If you or a loved one has motor neurone disease, we're here for you.

Motor Neurone Disease New Zealand is the only charity focused on improving quality of life, funding research and campaigning for people affected by motor neurone disease in Aotearoa.
